

SHRINE BOWL OF THE CAROLINAS

"Strong Legs Run So Weak Legs May Walk"

December 19th, 2014 | ISSUE 6

Silent Auction Raises Funds for Shriners Hospitals for Children

-Jake Kea

SC Correspondent

The main objective of Shrine Bowl Week is to raise awareness and money for the children of the Shriners Hospital. To succeed in such a noble cause, the Shrine Bowl administration specifically TJ Lewis, has put together a Silent Auction that will be taking bids for the remainder of the week. Most of the items include sports memorabilia, and novelty items including a guitar signed by Kid Rock, authentic game uniforms and autographed helmets. The auction will be open before the Team Banquet and will close at 5 PM, so families and friends may participate in the bidding. All the proceeds go to the Shriners Hospitals for Children. You can visit www.Shrine-Bowl.com for more information.

SC Head Coach Ben Freeman Looking to Remain Perfect in All-Star Games

- Jake Kea (@JakeKea) SC Correspondent

South Carolina Sandlapper Head Coach Ben Freeman will be putting his perfect record in South Carolina All-Star games to the test in Saturday's game versus the Tar Heels. Coach Freeman was selected as an assistant in 2001, the year South Carolina went on to defeat North Carolina 17-0. He also has two wins in the South Carolina North-South game as a member of the coaching staff. Coach Freeman graduated from Wake Forrest University in 1986, and was a letter winner in Football. Freeman is currently in his twenty-fifth year at Pelion High School which is located near the Capitol, Columbia. (See page 2)

(Continued from Front)

He has lead the Panthers to it's only undefeated season in school history, and has won several Region Championships. "It's an honor.." Coach Freeman said. "This game is for such a good cause, and the Shriners do a great job of putting it together." On a side note, Coach Freeman's son Dalton spent five years with the Clemson Tigers where he received numerous All-ACC awards and was later drafted by the New York Jets. As for Saturday's game, Coach Freeman is locked in on staying perfect. "In 2001 I remember us [South Carolina] having a tremendous defense, most of the players played in college and even in the pros." With the same feeling trending about the 2014 South Carolina defense, you would have to believe the Sandlapper coaching staff and Coach Freeman have a positive feeling going into Gibbs Stadium on Saturday.

Roseboro Cousins Show the Nation What Their Family Is Made of

- Noah Thomas (@iNoahT) NC Correspondent

Every Shrine Bowl team is different. Year in and year out there are All-Americans, Division-1 commits, future NFL stars such as William Perry, Julius Peppers, AJ Green, and Jadeveon Clowney.

Over the course of the seven days they call Spartanburg their home, the players of both North Carolina and South Carolina form family-like bonds that last forever.

That connection runs a little deeper for cousins Darian and Dominique Roseboro.

"It feels great," said Dominique. "At first I didn't really feel like it was a big deal until recently. We didn't actually grow up together. We met each other starting one football season in high school and a couple of our family members had started getting us together after seeing how much talent we have, and that's how we've become so close."

Dominique's cousin, Darian, is ranked as the top strong side defensive end in the state of North Carolina and is committed to play in college at North Carolina State after decommitting from the University of Michigan earlier this year.

"It's pretty cool to play in the Shrine Bowl," Darian said, "it's pretty cool to have relatives on the team with you and have Division-1 offers to where we can go and play in college together if that [N.C. State] is where he decides to go."

Dominique – undecided in terms of college – is currently considering North Carolina State and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Darian on the possibility of playing against his cousin in college in one of the biggest rivalries in the state:

“I don’t really like Carolina. It’d be fun going up against each other in real competition.” Dominique had a similar take on the subject:

“With me being from Shelby, I have a lot of kin folk in Chapel Hill. I know State is the better football program right now, but I feel like it would be a bit of a family tradition for me to go to Carolina.”

Both men have similar goals for their freshman seasons: get significant playing time and make big plays. Darian desires to break Mario Williams’s sack record, Williams being another former Shrine Bowl player who was taken first overall in the 2006 NFL Draft.

“I really want to make my own footsteps, and I respect he [Mario] was a great player, but I don’t really want to be compared to anyone. I really want to make my own name,” Darian said.

With Darian heading to North Carolina State next month and becoming a member of the Wolfpack, Dominique will make his decision in the next month and a half. No matter what happens, it is clear to see that the Triangle will be getting two outstanding football players and young men.

Friday, December 19th, 2014 (Sunny; Hi:56 Lo: 41)

Breakfast 7:30 AM

Team Practice
9:30-11:30 AM

Lunch 11:45-1:00

Team Meetings
2:00-4:00

Players' and
Coaches Awards
Banquet 6:00-7:30